LAW AGENCY.

Among the vexations of business, in our line, not the least is that of having a draft returned protested. Our uniform practice, in such cases, is to put it in the hands of a good prompt collecting attorney, forthwith, when such nu one is to be found; and, in nine cases out of ten, ve know that we save money by it; but, alas! where can a citizen, like ourselves, who does not look nut of Wullstreet but once a day, when we go home after the day's toil is over, where, we ask, are we to learn who is prampt, and responsible, and trust worthy, and who, when he collects our money, will remit it to us? Where are we even to learn the names of such attorneys, if perchance they exist, residing in the remote sections of the Union, or even near by?

A friend, some time since, directed us to the Commercial Law Agency, No. 49 William-street, for information, and we followed the directions given us by the enterprising proprietors, to collect a small acceptance, past due, the result of which was that our money was collected and paid over without delay, just as we like to have it, and we had the satisfaction of using it in our business, at a profit, and also of eating our dinner with an appetite.

Command us, in future, to the Law Agency for all over due claims; the lawyers commissions are nothing to the comfort of having one's debt collected and sottled up. Merchants, bankers and brokers are referred to their advertisement in this day's paper.

EXTENSIVE LAW AGENCY, No. 49 WILLIAM-STREET.

EXTENSIVE LAW AGENCY.—The character of the gentlemen who undertake this agency—the facilities they have for the transaction of the business they propose, and the unquestionable references they present, as guarantees of their respectability and trustworthiness, constitute sufficient recommendation. Their plan scena to us judicious, and likely to prove beneficial both to thunselvos and those who shall cumplous, and those who shall cumplous them.—N. Y. Ancrican.

those who shall employ them—It I, Intercent.

Extensive Commercial Law Agency.—Those of our readers who have country debts for collection will find, in our collumns to-day, a notice of an office, under this head, conducted by gentlemen whose references are of the highest character. Their plan presents advantages not to be overlooked by our increhants, and, we understand, is favorably received.—N. Y. Express.

understand, is favorably received.—N. Y. Express.

Extrastre Commercial Law Agence.—Merchants who have debts due from the country—and who has not? are referred to the advertisement under this head, in our paper to-day, for the means of security promptness and efficiency in their collections. Probably more money is lost by delay in collection than from absolute failures. The managers of this agency have the reputation of being uniting in their effects, and certainly, if perseverance and energy are requisite to secure their object, they deserve success. The plan appears to us a desirable one, and has, hitherto, been nucle needed. We commend it to those who are interested in sustaining the enterprise.—Tribune.

This Paper is forwarded by Woodward & Dusenbery, No. 49 William-street, New-York, for the purpose of attracting the attention of gentlemen of the legsl profession. It is presumed that the information centained in the Bank Note List will be useful to all to whom it is addressed. Every gentleman receiving it is requested to mail one of the newspapers of his county, or state, to our address. Those who are not of the legal profession may reader service to some legal friend by calling his attention to our advertisement and references.

Promptitude on the part of our correspondents will ossentially aid us in completing our arrangements for their advantage; those who have business on hand will oblige us by writing immediately by mail.
